ABOUT THE STEEL

S30V

An all-around premium stainless cutlery steel. This fine-grained vanadium steel offers extremely hard carbides, enabling it to take and hold a razor edge for an extended time. Zero Tolerance heat-treats this tough and wear-resistant steel to 57-59 Rockwell.

154CM

A high-performance steel that holds an edge extremely well, is fairly tough, and moderately stain resistant. Heat treatment will affect the characteristics of this steel enormously; Zero Tolerance's technical expertise brings out the best in the steel. 59-61 Rockwell.

14C28N

The overall highest performing knife steel in the world that still maintains the productivity benefit of being fine-blankable. It was developed in a partnership between Sandvik and Kai USA, the makers of Zero Tolerance. Hardened to 58-60 Rockwell.

S35VN

This very homogeneous, high-quality steel offers even better toughness than S30V; it resists edge chipping and corrosion, is easily machined, and takes a polish.

3V

An extremely tough carbon steel designed for hard use; good edge holding capabilities; not stainless, but ZT coats 3V blades (for example, on the 0100) with Tungsten DLC to protect the blade.

ELMAX®

A high chromium-vanadium molybdenum alloyed steel that combines high wear resistance together with corrosion resistance; also offers high strength and hardenability.

N360

A highly corrosion resistant stainless steel produced using the P-ESR-process, which refines the steel for an extremely smooth, homogeneous product. It offers excellent toughness, high hardness and high compressive strength.
